Our world changes rapidly. The most tremendous impact on it is made by people. Therefore, if you do not support the way other people develop our reality, you shall get a big role in society for leading them and changing our world as you want. "Be the change that you wish to see in the world." - Mahatma Gandhi said.

In my opinion, the way our world changes is very crucial for its people. That is why some people want to be politicians, economists or others who directly influence world change. Meanwhile, a lot of people are interested in discussing about politics and connected areas, that ~~means~~ supports the idea of importance of the way our world changes for a huge amount of people.

Having said that, I would like to share some experience to support my opinion. For example, there are a lot of books of gold Russian literature century that illustrate different political organisations. It is a good example of efforts of people to be the change of the world. For instance, my friend took part in school debates and made own breaks between lessons a bit longer.

In conclusion, I would like to say that all people dream about changing something. Consequently, if they dream, they should do more to make theirs desires a reality.

There are many changes in our world happening each second. Some of them might seem miserable and we don't even notice them. Some of them are global and our life can't stay the same after ~~these~~ these changes. And everyday, we are waiting for some miracle, which ~~is~~ is going to make our life better. But, obviously, it is not possible. But what can we do to ~~to~~ have ~~the~~ changes in our world, that we want to see? Mahatma Gandhi once said: "Be the change that you wish to see in the world." I would like to give my opinion on this phrase.

In my opinion, people should be more ^{confident} brave in deciding problems, that concern them. As an example, I would like to tell a story that happened to my friend, Anya.

For a long time, next to my friend's house lived a lot of abandoned cats. Nobody took poor kittens home. And one day, Anya had a conversation with her parents and they allowed to take kittens home.

Anya acted like a good person and was the change, that she wanted to see in the world.

In conclusion, I would like to advice to be more brave to do the change and go straight to your goal.

Nowadays, people become more and more lazy, fearing of any problems and becoming weaker. They also hope that there is someone who will solve their problems and do their work for them.

I believe that if you want something done well, you must do it yourself. After all, there is no a better stimulus than an opportunity to improve yourself. When you get in troubles, you earn useful experience that can help you to adapt to other problems. Moreover, when you solve your problems by yourself, you become more independent.

I would like to give a few examples to illustrate this. Blizzard, once a small group of teenagers, is now a big and well-known game development company, and they did it without anyone's help, they relied only on themselves. Also, as Mahatma Gandhi once said, "be the change that you wish to see in the world". I wholeheartedly agree with him, because I believe that our future depends on us and not anyone else.

In conclusion, I would like to say that we should stop giving up and backing down so oftenly. After all, a human being is capable for doing a lot as well as ensuring even more

To be honest, this quotation sounds very great. I really agree with the ~~words~~ ^{words} and thoughts of Mahatma Gandhi.

To my mind, if you want to change the world (and yourself) you should begin from yourself. And there are some reasons for it. Firstly, you are a member of the society where many people pay attention on your qualities of a character, your actions. (and behaviour) There are even somebody who want to be similar to you so it's necessary to control your behaviour which can be an ^{example} for someone in your surroundings. Secondly, although you are only a small ^{part} of the whole world population but even your ideas and actions can change the world, for example, if you throw rubbish in special places, a little children, watching your behaviour, will do the same in the future. This way, such model of ~~let~~ ^{let} action will spread all around the world.

To evidence my point of view, I will give some examples of personal experience. The first one is that when I ^{went} ~~go~~ across the road I saw an elderly woman and I helped her to get to another side of the road. A little girl saw this and since that time she helped elderly people too.

~~No doubt,~~ ^{In conclusion,} it is important "to be a change that you wish to see in the future".

There's a popular quote by a famous indian political activist, Mahatma Ghandi, that goes like this: "Be the change that you wish to see in the world." This quote has a deep, yet helpful meaning, which, in my understanding, is telling us that it isn't enough to just believe in what you believe this world should be, but to preach ~~it~~ and follow it in your life. 66

My first ~~exam~~ argument is that Ghandi himself ^{was} a living example of this. He was fighting for his nation ~~against~~ the rule of British Raj, yet he believed in peaceful methods - and he followed them to the last. The over throw wasn't a bloody revolution, but a rather peaceful resolution on the geopolitical scale. His words and beliefs ~~had~~ ^{held} actual weight. 127

The point of my second argument is that it's hypocritical to go against your beliefs. As an example, I will talk about Pechorin, a young officer from the book "The hero of our days" by Lermontov. Pechorin always thinks he's doing the right thing and he doesn't care if it ends up doing more bad than good, he still feels like he's doing the right thing. 193

To conclude, I wanted to say that it's important to live according to your beliefs, especially in the modern world where there's a lot of judgement and pressure. 221

Today I have been asked to comment a quotation of Mahatma Gandhi. This quotation tells us that if you want something to change, make changes by yourself.²²

In my opinion, the quotation gives us a wise and very important tip, that will help us to solve our everyday problems. The first reason of it's importance is that nothing will ever change, as ~~you~~ you don't start changing something by yourself. The second reason is that you should change things that you want to change only with your own help.³⁸

During my life I had to make changes. For example, I needed to improve my health, so I asked my mom to buy me a thing that allows me to go to the gym. If I did not, I would have never improve my health. As another example, I needed to have good exam results, so I started ~~to~~ studying hard and this change helped me a lot to pass the exam.¹³

In conclusion^P I would like to say that Mahatma Gandhi said wise words, that are true in limitless amount of situations. There are so many things that you may want to change. If you want changes, go ahead and change your own life and the whole world.²⁰⁷

Nowadays, most people want to change the world around them in the way they want themselves, but unfortunately they don't know how to begin accomplishing their great plans. A very well-known Indian politician and activist Mahatma Gandhi once shared his own opinion on this problem: "Be the change that you wish to see in the world."

I personally support Gandhi's thought. First of all, wishes and dreams are highly unlikely to come true without actions. So the one who strives for the bright future should work hard. However, reality cannot be changed in a matter of seconds. But what can is the point of viewing it.

For an example, I would like to write down a Chinese legend. It tells us an interesting story. A rich man received a malachite lockbox on his birthday, and he soon found out that it does not match the interior of his living room. Then he ordered to paint that room in green. From this moment the room did not match the whole house anymore, and only then the man understood - he didn't need the whole universe changed, he just needed to change his mind.

To conclude, a journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step. Change yourself - and so will change everything you see!
